Two well-intentioned parents jumped on the band-wagon naming their first born "Jennifer" deep in the heart of the densely-populated Jersey burbs close to the great city of NY. The child eventually learned to turn that native accent on and off at will. The arts seem to be the safest place for her since she is a walking contradiction.

She is clumsy, yet can dance, quirky, yet is poised, goofy yet intelligent.

She has strength with vulnerability.

Her heart lies in projects where women overcome obstacles.

Producer

Los Angeles - 2019 - Now available at streaming online are all six episodes of season one of LAST SEEN, a new drama/mystery web series about race and justice in America. Join Bonnie Chen, a true crime podcast host with a personal drive for justice, as she investigates a cold case from 1987.

Exploring race, gender, and economic disparity in the justice system, as well providing us with a textured and diverse cast of talented actors, LAST SEEN is a female-driven production, created by writer/producer MARIAH GRETCHEN ROBINSON (“The Gut”) and directed by HEATHER DE MICHELE (“As Good As You”). Featuring supporting talent like PEGGY BLOW (“On My Block”, “Versace”) as Sheriff Ida Heartstark, and ANNA KHAJA (“Madam Secretary”, “SWAT”) as Kat, we are also happy to introduce stars KIM CHUEH as Bonnie and JUAN PACHECO as Tariq. Hoping to highlight the tragic social phenomena of the “less dead”, our story operates both as a stand-alone web-series, as well as an introduction to the larger world of the town of Honeycutt. With season one now available, we are currently in development of seasons 2 & 3.

LAST SEEN

Speaker

Jennifer is a cancer survivor in addition to losing her wife and partner — Mariah Gretchen Robinson — to cancer in 2019.

Jennifer is developing a platform to share her experience through illness and grief as a way to help others through similar life events and processes, even as she continues the journey of her own healing.
